DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 6, there is no antecedent basis for "the coiling devices".

Furthermore, it is unclear what active method steps are being claimed, for purposes of examination it is assumed that the steps of coiling, uncoiling, heating and controlling are the active method steps being claimed. Additionally, it is not clear if the same controlling steps are being claimed in the phrases "the control, through special algorithms of the process software, of the coiling step for its respective speeding up or slowing down; and the control, through a special process software, of the speed of pre-strip (a) during the coiling and uncoiling steps".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tippins et al '874 in view of Quambusch et al '134 and Krall et al '829. As best understood Tippins discloses a most of the claimed elements including, a roughing mill (RR), a strip thickness between 30mm and 8 mm (col. 3, lines 35-37), coiling, uncoiling and heating of the strip is accomplished through furnace coilers (CF1,CF2 and CF3), heating outside the coilers is done by heaters 1,2,3 shown in figure 2. Quambusch is relied upon to teach that it is known to provide a system connected to a caster (17) and to control system furnace coiler speeds (much like the ones of Tippins) through the use of a central control system (15). Krall is relied upon to teach that it is known to provide control systems that control speeds of coilers which are computer based and inherently utilize algorithms (figures 2 and 3). Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the claimed invention to have incorporated a computerized system (utilizing software algorithms) to control the speed of the coilers for the purpose of efficiency through process automation.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-5 are allowed.

Claim 7 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
